St Helier, Jersey has quaint cobblestone streets and bustling city squares which sit against a backdrop of the blue waters of the English Channel and the 16th-century Elizabeth Castle. The town's antique harbours are lined with pubs and cafés where you can let your worries drift away with the cool ocean breeze.

The capital of the island of Jersey, St. Helier is well-known for its award-winning museums and attractions which reflect its seafaring history and the harrowing story of Jersey's 5-year occupation by the Germans during WWII

Guernsey combines the English and French way of living, taking the best from both and adding its own independent character. While the Island of Sark gives you the tranquillity, with the absence of the motor car and the daily bustle of business and Herm, the beautiful beaches.

A heady mix of stunning scenery and the best of contemporary living, Guernsey is the perfect destination. Inspiring walks along the cliff paths, rambles through the rural interior or lazy days on the island's beautiful beaches, Guernsey has it all.

St Peter Port, the island's capital, which is where our hotel is situated, is a bustling harbour town, a tapestry of architectural styles that tell the story of the region's changing fortunes. Here bistros, restaurants and boutiques jostle for your attention, while in the harbour ferries are readied to take you to the sister islands.

Day trips to the following islands from Guernsey

Sark:

The fourth smallest of the Channel Islands. Sark has its own Government and laws. Sark is unique, British, but somehow, completely different. Only accessible by boat, when you arrive you can either choose to walk up the harbour hill footpath or take a seat on the tractor drawn bus. Peaceful and tranquil. There are NO cars on Sark only tractors, bicycles, or horse drawn carriages.

Herm:

Just 3 miles from Guernsey the island is just a mile and half long and half mile wide. Beautiful sandy beaches and lovely relaxing footpaths around the island.
